

Independent Examination of PCC accounts

It is the responsibility of the PCC to appoint an independent examiner to examine their accounts each year. Most PCCs appoint an examiner who is happy to examine the PCC accounts without payment, though the PCC must be satisfied that the examiner has the requisite ability and experience. If a PCC is struggling to find an examiner we would always recommend that they seek help from others in their area or from a local firm of accountants however the following list of accountancy firms are happy to be approached to provide an independent examination if a suitable volunteer cannot be found. The fee should be negotiated with the individual firm as there are many factors which will affect the cost.
