

Understanding Christianity (Cohort 4)

This resource, published by RE Today and the Church of England Education Office and referenced in the SIAMS schedule, is only available to those who complete the full accredited training course.

The aims of this three-session course are to:

- Explore this new national resource for teaching Christianity
- Discover the teaching method of Text, Impact, Connections
- Engage with questions of religious and theological literacy

By the end of the course participants will:

- Have the training manual in hard copy (one per school)
- Have access to the accompanying online resources
- Have explored ways to implement the resource
- Have increased their biblical and theological knowledge and confidence in RE teaching
- Have completed at least two “gap tasks”

Target Audience: This course is for infant, junior, primary and secondary teachers who would like to see a real improvement in the teaching of Christianity in their schools.

Feedback from a delegate attending the first cohort:

*“A great resource! It’s great to see such a detailed and useful resource on teaching Christianity.
Looking forward to exploring this further in future sessions.”*
